

THOMAS M. MOHR BIOGRAPHY

I was born in December 1951 in a small town close to the German North Sea, about 60 miles south of the Danish border. I spent countless hours in my early childhood watching international merchant ships moving up the Elbe River to the port city of Hamburg, while dreaming of living one day in one of those countries.

After my German Abitur education and the regular compulsory military service, I was recruited in 1974 by Hoechst AG to participate in a unique work-study program between Hoechst AG, IHK and the University of Mainz (Fachhochschule fuer Wirtschaft). I graduated from the program in 1978 with a German degree in Business Administration.

The years from 1985-1999 can only be characterized as constant excitement and challenge. I married my American wife, Nancy, after a 6-month engagement, and our two sons, Jordan and Tyler, were born in Singapore in 1986 and 1989. During that time, I built, realigned and restructured companies in Indonesia, Central America and Mexico.

As the education of our sons was always most important and close to our hearts, in 1999 Nancy and I moved to North Carolina, in order to allow our sons to grow up in one educational system. They are now attending universities in North Carolina and Florida. In 2004, I became an American citizen.

Since 1999, I have led several companies as President & CEO in turnaround assignments in Europe and the Americas.

In 2006, I joined Applied Extrusion Technologies, Inc., as their President & CEO. They are the number one supplier of oriented polypropylene films in many key markets in North America.
