

Lisa Youngberg
Director of Cyber Security
BMO Financial Group

Lisa Youngberg is Director of Cyber Security at BMO Financial Group where she oversees the management of cyber security risk and issues to ensure that the bank's customers and employees are protected from cyber threats. She has been with BMO for eight years where she also assessed the bank's operational risk capital position and ensured incentive compensation decisions were appropriately balanced with the bank's risk profile. Prior to joining BMO, Lisa held various roles at HSBC in the areas of financial reporting and planning, financial systems management, operational risk and internal controls. She started her career at the public accounting firm of Coopers and Lybrand as an external auditor for various financial institutions and manufacturers.

Lisa graduated with a BBA in Accounting from the University of Iowa. She lives in Chicago and is an avid volunteer supporting various social services organizations throughout her community. She is a board member of Reba Early Learning Center and she manages the food pantry plot at her local community garden.
