

Erik Torgerson

Private Investor

Former Partner, Senior Advisor

Norwest Equity Partners

Erik Torgerson has over 30 years of financial and investment industry experience. He is very active as a private investor and works closely with management teams to successfully execute their strategic growth plans and assist them with capital formation, strategic planning, and acquisitions.

Torgerson is a former partner and senior advisor at Norwest Equity Partners (NEP) in Minneapolis, Minn. He joined NEP in 1993 and over the course of his career focused on growth financings, recapitalizations, and management buyouts in the agriculture, distribution, manufacturing, and communications industries across North America, Latin America, and Europe.

He started his career at Arthur Andersen & Co. where he focused on merger and acquisition projects and management consulting services.

Torgerson currently serves as chairman of the board of Sentera LLC. He is a director of Ascus Biosciences, Inc., Jord Biosciences, Norway House, and Discovery Capital Advisory Board and is a Trustee Emeritus of The University of Minnesota Foundation. At the University of Iowa's Tippie College of Business, Torgerson is a member of the Tippie Advisory Board and the Tippie Society.

He received a B.S. degree from the University of Minnesota and his M.B.A. from the University of Iowa.