

Eric D. Malchow

President and Global Head of M&A Lincoln International

Eric Malchow is the President and Global Head of M&A at Lincoln International. Lincoln is a global independent investment banking advisory firm focused on the private capital markets. The firm advises private equity and private credit investors, and private business owners across key sectors of the economy. Lincoln's approximately 1,000 employees are in 28 offices across 15 countries in the Americas, Europe and Asia.

Prior to his current role, Malchow served as the Co-President of Lincoln's North American business and Managing Director. He established and built the firm's industrials M&A practice at the firm's founding in 1996 and led the firm's industrial M&A practice for more than a decade. Throughout his thirty-plus-year investment banking career, Malchow has provided M&A advisory services for leading private equity groups and publicly-traded corporations. Prior to co-founding Lincoln, Malchow was a senior associate at Peers & Co. and an officer with Heller Financial, concentrating on leveraged buyout financings of mid-market companies on behalf of private equity groups.

Malchow serves on the investment committee of Top Hat, Lincoln's private investment fund focused on direct co-investments in equity, debt and secondary transactions across services, consumer, healthcare, industrials and technology.

Malchow earned a Master of Business Administration from the University of Chicago Booth School of Business and a Bachelor of Business Administration from the University of Iowa.

Malchow is married to Pam, and they are blessed with three children. In his free time, Malchow enjoys spending time with his family, playing golf, cheering on the Hawkeyes, and watching college and professional sports. Malchow's dream to play for the Chicago Cubs never materialized so he feeds his passion for baseball through his minority ownership of the Single-A Charleston RiverDogs.

He and his wife are passionate about education and mental health awareness and are actively involved with programs supporting these initiatives at Horizons For Youth, The Gateway Program at the University of Iowa, and the Office of Wellness at Villanova University.