

Paul Hampton

Head of Strategic Insights, Data and Analytics
Transamerica

Paul is the head of Strategic Insights, Data and Analytics for Protection Solutions and Savings & Investments.

Paul believes that business questions and strategic decision making should be rooted in timely and trustworthy data. This belief shapes how Paul and his team deliver business driven outcomes across the full data value chain; from basic data governance to reporting and data science. Although he has built his career in data and analytics, prior to taking his current role at Transamerica he worked in multiple other areas of the business, providing unique insight into business strategy and commercial dynamics. Paul now marries his business knowledge and expertise in data to create meaningful value for the organization. He is also a member of multiple data, analytics and AI industry and leadership groups.

Paul lives in Milwaukee, WI with his wife Abbie, their two kids and dog Otis. Paul has a passion for music, especially punk rock, and in his free time is usually running or rock climbing with family.
