

Christopher J. Hoffman

Senior Partner

PricewaterhouseCoopers

Christopher J. Hoffman (Chris) is a senior partner with PwC in Chicago serving as lead audit partner on key clients in health care and higher education sectors as well as cross-industry private companies.

Chris joined PwC in Kansas City in 1990 after a few years with regional and smaller national firms. He was admitted to the partnership in 2000 and has worked in the offices of Kansas City, Dallas, St. Louis, and Chicago. In Hoffman's 30+ years of public accounting experience, he and his teams always deliver a very high level of professional client service.

As the market leader of PwC's higher education practice in the Midwest, Chris serves as the lead partner on some of the firm's key university clients, such as University of Chicago, University of Michigan, Notre Dame, and Northwestern University. Additionally, he serves as lead auditor on various private companies, primarily in the medical and industrial products area.

Chris is currently an active board member with One Hope United serving as treasurer and audit committee chair. He has continually supported child welfare and educational organizations throughout his professional career.

He has served on the Tippie Advisory Board since 2014 and the Professional Accounting Council from 2005 through 2013. Chris received a BBA in accounting from the University of Iowa in 1985.
