

Trevor Schauenberg

Chief Financial Officer

EquipmentShare

Trevor Schauenberg is a versatile executive with 28 years managing multibillion-dollar businesses, leading global teams, and driving complex initiatives.

He recently accepted the chief financial officer role at EquipmentShare after serving as board member and executive operating partner over the last year.

He is also the non-executive chairman of Grower's Edge, an innovative private fintech company in the agriculture space, and chairman of the Chicago board for buildOn, a non-profit organization running youth services afterschool programs across the U.S.

Throughout his career, Schauenberg has navigated diverse roles in operational and financial strategy, change management, and team building, primarily for the General Electric Company (GE). Most recently serving as president & CEO, Industrial Finance for GE Capital, he successfully formed and launched a new business segment providing solutions to GE customers, improving working capital for GE, and delivering capex financing for GE businesses.

Previously, Schauenberg held various high-level positions at GE, including president and CEO of GE's Americas Direct Segment, vice president and head of GE Investor Relations for GE Corporate, vice president and CFO of Capital Solutions for GE Capital, CFO for GE Transportation Services, CFO for Insurance Solutions, Global Property, & Casualty Reinsurance for GE in Germany, CFO for Insurance Holdings for GE Commercial Finance in the UK, and executive audit manager for GE Capital.

In June 2019, he retired from GE and moved to Florence, Italy, with his family for a one-year sabbatical. The Schauenbergs reside in Sarasota, Florida during the school year and summer in Redding Connecticut.

Schauenberg holds a bachelor's degree in finance from the University of Iowa where he created the Schauenberg Global Internship Fund to foster diversity. He was deemed 2018's Tippie Alumni of the Year.
